New edition

Dear Friends,

Hello, and welcome to the new 2015 catalogue, which showcases our excellent Collins products across reference, dictionaries, language learning, games and revision.

The big news is that we have new editions this autumn of our flagship books - The Times Comprehensive Atlas of the World and Collins English Dictionary – which gives us good reason to be excited about the coming year. And in the rest of our range, we have titles ranging from railways to astronomy, and from bilingual dictionaries to new revision titles – all market-leading extensions of the already powerful Collins brand. As ever, you can trust Collins products to be packed with inspiration and expertise. We aim to place the user at the centre of a world of possibility and give them exactly what they need to explore it.

In this new catalogue we have sought to highlight great titles from across the Collins publishing range, including lots of Christmas opportunities from the History of the World in Maps to the Collins Little Book of Bananagrams. In home learning, we're launching the delightfully engaging Letts Wild About series, which will cover all key areas of the new Key Stage 2 national curriculum.

Keep up-to-date with the world of reference and revision through our Twitter and Facebook pages (details on the left), which include range developments, commentary, and book giveaways.

With my very best wishes for a prosperous 2015,

Colin Hughes, Managing Director, Collins

Monster Number Lines

Gran is teaching me to add like her. She's made a number line out of monster footprints to help me.

A number line can be useful when adding on.

When adding sets of objects together we also use the words plus and more than.

What is 4 plus 2? Work out 2 more than 4.

Count on the number line to check the answer. 4 + 2 = 6 (this is called a number sentence).

Watch out for tricky sets with nothing in them. If there isn't anything in a set it is called zero or nought and you stay still on the number line.

5 + 0 = 5 and 0 + 5 = 5

1 Find the totals for each of these. Draw the jumps and write the answers.

a $3 + 5 = \square$

b $4 + 4 = \square$

c $2 + 3 = \square$

2 Now try these more difficult ones.

a $6 + 0 = \square$

b $0 + 4 = \square$

3 Use the number line to help answer these.

a $4 + 2 = \square$

d $6 + 2 = \square$

g $7 \text{ add } 3 = \square$

b $4 + 4 = \square$

e $0 + 5 = \square$

h $3 \text{ plus } 3 = \square$

c $2 + 3 = \square$

f $3 + 5 = \square$

i $5 \text{ more than } 4 = \square$

Fun Zone!

Join the dots to discover a monster part!
Congratulations! You can now find Shape 2 on the Monster. Match page and colour it in!

Timing of Curriculum Change in England and Wales

Who we are and what we do

William Collins' dream of 'knowledge for all' began with the publication of his first book in 1819. A self-educated mill-worker, he founded a flourishing publishing house in Glasgow and went on to enrich the lives of millions through his publishing. Collins is now an imprint of HarperCollins UK. Whether you want to learn a language, get from A to B, or take up a new hobby from bird-watching to star-gazing, there is something for everyone.

John Bartholomew & Son Ltd., the prestigious Scottish mapping company was initially situated in Edinburgh. This is where the firm pioneered landmark achievements such as the first half-inch to one mile Reduced Ordnance Survey Maps of Scotland in 1875 and The Times Survey Atlas of the World in 1922, supplementing the first Times Atlas, which was first produced in 1895. The Bartholomews also produced extensive mapping in support of the military during the Second World War. In 1989, John Bartholomew & Son Ltd became part of the newly formed HarperCollins, and moved to its current location near Glasgow in 1995.

Letts joined HarperCollins in 2010. Already established publishers of curriculum-based revision and home learning resources for preschool, Primary and Secondary schools, children preparing for tests and students studying for GCSE and A Level exams, Letts products use accessible content and effective revision methods to ensure students of all ages achieve the best results.
