

8 Using everyday moments

Lisa: Oh, hi Helen, how are you?

Helen: Oh, I'm really well thank you.

Lisa: Good, how was your weekend?

Helen: Oh it was good, thanks, very mu – yeah – it was really good – it was really enjoyable.

Lisa: What did you do? Did you do anything exciting?

Helen: Um ... well I went up to Cam ... um ... Camden market – Do you know that?

Lisa: I do – I do – I haven't been to Camden for years though. What – what – did you – what – what – did you go and look at?

Helen: I looked at all the stalls, there's lots of different things there but I really liked the – you know the market stalls you know with the food – food things – they [Oh, okay.] have a lot of international food.

Lisa: Oh, really? Lots of international food?

Helen: Yeah, from all around the world really, there's Chinese, there's Indian [Uh-huh.] ... um ... really nice [I absolutely love Japanese food.] mmm, [So maybe I should go there.] oh yeah. They have – they have – I think they have some Japanese food ... um ... yeah you should go [Yeah, great! Maybe I'll go this weekend.] Maybe it'll be nice ... um ... good idea ... um ... it's not far from you anyway, is it?

Lisa: No, not at all, I could just pop on the tube and I'll be there ...
