Robert Peal

William Collins' dream of knowledge for all began with the publication of his first book in 1819. A self-educated mill worker, he not only enriched millions of lives, but also founded a flourishing publishing house. Today, staying true to this spirit, Collins books are packed with inspiration, innovation and practical expertise. They place you at the centre of a world of possibility and give you exactly what you need to explore it.

Knowledge-based history teaching

Knowing History is a knowledge-based history scheme. It is designed to build pupils' thinking from the bottom-up, where subject knowledge provides a gateway to a rich and rewarding understanding of history.

Recent works by cognitive scientists have shown that pupils need to have a large amount of subject knowledge stored in their long-term memory in order to become competent at any subject. Pupils are far more capable of 'thinking historically' when faced with topics they know and understand.

For this reason, Knowing History is designed to teach history in a clear and deliberate fashion, where content knowledge is secured before complex tasks are undertaken.

In each chapter, a core narrative is presented. The Teacher Guide then breaks down that narrative into key vocabulary, dates and people to help scaffold pupils' learning. For ease of reference, this key content is collected at the end of each unit into a 'knowledge organiser'. Knowledge organisers allow pupils to test themselves, and allow teachers to design quick factual recall tests, ensuring that all pupils master important knowledge at an early stage.

Once this knowledge has been mastered, the Teacher Guide recommends historical sources for pupils to analyse and 'thinking deeper' questions for pupils to answer. These have been carefully chosen to seize pupils' interest and complement the core narrative of the Student Book.

Knowing History is designed with the intention that complex tasks – such as source analysis and extended writing – are pursued as the outcomes of having learnt historical content, and not the means for doing so. Pupils will be far more capable of, and confident about, completing such tasks when once they have achieved an essential understanding of the period in question.

Like all subjects, history is best learnt by relating new information to prior knowledge. For example, pupils will better understand the Peasants' Revolt of 1381, if they have previously learnt about the structure of the feudal system, and impact of the Black Death on England. Therefore, the Teacher Guide lists topics and vocabulary from previous chapters that should be revisited, before each new chapter is introduced.

Knowing History provides an essential framework for pupils to learn about the past, but it does not pretend to be exhaustive. The core narrative provided by Knowing History should be complemented with as many examples of historical evidence, activities and texts from other sources that you – the teacher – see fit.

Lesson structure

The recommended lesson structure for teaching from Knowing History is based on cognitive science and research into highly effective teachers, adapted for use in the history classroom. It follows a structure of recap, pre-teach, read, condense, apply, review.

1. RECAP on previous learning: Start lessons with a short review of previous learning. This serves two purposes. First, frequent review of subject content strengthens its place in pupils' long-term memory, and helps make the recall of words, people, events and concepts automatic. Second, it brings to the front of pupils' minds the relevant prior knowledge that they need to draw upon to understand the new chapter. This may come from the immediately preceding chapter, or from a completely different unit. For example, during a lesson on the Crusader States and the Third Crusade (5.3), you may want to recap the First Crusade (5.2) from the same unit, but you may also want to recap on King John's behaviour during the reign of Richard I (4.2). Suggested recap material is listed in the Teacher Guide, along with key vocabulary. Definitions for these terms can be found in the Knowledge Organiser, or – if the term is covered in a previous unit or book – in the Knowing History glossary. Recap material could be covered through a starter activity, a short quiz or oral question and answer.
2. PRE-TEACH difficult new material: Before reading the text, you may want to 'pre-teach' any particularly challenging new material. This could include keywords, complicated geography or a tricky concept. For example, before teaching a lesson on the different claims to the throne in 1066 (2.1), you may want to ensure that pupils understand why it was so important for a monarch to have royal blood, and the concept of 'legitimacy' for a monarch.
3. READ new material: Each chapter is around 750 words. You may wish to ask pupils to read sections of the text independently, or chose to read it as a whole class. Along the way, make sure that you are continually asking questions, illustrating important points and clarifying any confusion.
4. CONDENSE new material into an easily understood format: Pupils should then reproduce the information in a new format which will aid their understanding. This can be something as simple as answering factual comprehension questions, but activities could also include:
 - Producing an illustrated storyboard: helpful for chapters which present a clear narrative, such as Henry II's falling out with Thomas Becket (4.1).
 - Annotating a map: useful for information with an important geographical component, such as the spread of Islam (5.1), or the different conflicts in England during the summer of 1066 (2.2).
 - Annotating an image: annotating an image or an illustration can help understand visual information, such as the layout of a medieval village (3.1).
 - Completing a worksheet: this allows pupils to sort complex information in a format which clarifies its meaning. For example, pupils could fill in an annotated family tree to ensure that they understand the role played by Alfred and his descendents in creating the single Anglo-Saxon kingdom of England (1.5).

These activities should be followed by a whole-class check, to ensure that pupils have completed the task correctly, and to clarify any confusion that may have arisen. This can be done through self-assessment, peer-assessment or simple question and answer.

5. APPLY new knowledge: Having acquired new knowledge, it is then time to apply it. This could take place at the end of the lesson where knowledge is acquired, or during a following lesson. Ways to apply new knowledge include:
- Source analysis: the Knowing History scheme presents sources as a part of the curriculum, which should be studied in their own right. For this reason, carefully chosen sources are suggested for each chapter. For example, when studying the medieval Church (3.3), an illustration of the scene from hell from the Book of Hours (available on the British Library website) will vividly bring alive for pupils' the medieval conception of the afterlife.
 - Further reading: once pupils have mastered the basic outline of a period through a chapter in Knowing History, you may want to introduce a more complex or detailed text. This could include a passage from an adult history book, an article from a historical magazine or text from a reputable online source.
 - Extended writing: answering a well-designed historical question encourages pupils to think more deeply about the content they have studied. The five 'check your understanding' questions at the foot of each chapter, and the two 'thinking deeper' questions in the Teacher Guide, can be used as a basis for such questions. Such extended writing should encourage pupils to make links between different periods they have studied, building increasingly complex networks of historical understanding.
6. REVIEW material learnt: Lessons should be interspersed with quick diagnostic checks, to ascertain the level of understanding that pupils have achieved. To help with this process, a list of carefully designed Quizzing questions (10 per chapter) is listed at the back of the Teacher Guide. Such activities are crucial in helping to strengthen pupil memory: the more pupils rehearse and review information, the stronger their memory becomes.

End of unit essays: You may want to end each unit with a piece of extended writing, answering a question that draws upon knowledge from all five chapters in the unit. For example, having completed 'Unit 5: The Crusades', pupils could answer a question such as: 'Why did medieval knights choose to go on Crusade: glory, greed or God?'

Unit 1: Anglo-Saxon England

Chapter 1: The Anglo Saxons

Recap

- Any pre-existing knowledge pupils may have from primary school about the Romans and the Romans in Britain.
- Establish that the Romans were a developed civilisation, with many advanced technologies such as road building, heated baths and aqueducts, which can be seen in the remains of Roman Britain today, such as at Fishbourne Palace, Hadrian's Wall and Bath.
- Also clarify that during the 4th century, from the reign of Constantine onwards, the Roman Empire had officially embraced Christianity.

Key vocabulary

AD	Used to record historical dates as number of years after Christ's birth: Anno Domini
Anglo-Saxons	Two Germanic tribes who invaded England from Germany, between AD 400 and AD 600
Archaeologist	Someone who examines objects and locations from the past, often through excavation
Celts	The dominant population in Britain until the arrival of the Anglo-Saxons
Century	A period of one hundred years, often used to describe different historical periods
Dark Ages	A term sometimes used to describe the years that followed the fall of the Roman Empire
Native	A person born in or historically associated with a particular country or region
Sutton Hoo	The site of an Anglo-Saxon ship burial from the 7th century AD

Key dates

400–600 The Roman army leaves Britain

410 The Angles and Saxons arrive in England from Germany

Check your understanding

1. Who invaded Britain after the Roman army abandoned the country in AD 410?
Answer: After the Roman army abandoned Britain in AD 410, two tribes from northern Germany invaded Britain. They were known as the Anglo-Saxons.
2. What sort of communities did Anglo-Saxons live in?
Answer: Anglo-Saxons lived in villages and small farming communities, and were less likely than the Romans to live in large towns and cities.
3. What sort of weapons did Anglo-Saxons use?
Answer: In battle, Anglo-Saxons wore metal helmets and round wooden shields. They were armed with swords, throwing axes, and 2-metre-long spears.
4. Why do historians know very little about life in early Anglo-Saxon Britain?
Answer: Historians know very little about life in early Anglo-Saxon Britain because there are no written records or buildings left from these early years of Anglo-Saxon rule for historians to study.
5. What was the most famous object found at Sutton Hoo?
Answer: The most famous object to be found at Sutton Hoo was a magnificent iron helmet with a patterned facemask. It was intricately decorated with scenes of war, such as a warrior on a horse trampling a fallen enemy.

Suggested activities

- Ensure that pupils are able to use centuries and dates correctly. A predictable misconception amongst pupils will be that the date AD 410 will be in the 4th century, as opposed to the 5th century. In order to explain to pupils why this is not the case, use an analogy of their own age. A child who has just been born is in their first year, so an 11 year old child is in their twelfth year, a 12 year old child is in their thirteenth year, and so on. The same is so with historical centuries. Practice this over the course of the term by constantly asking pupils to say what century a particular date belongs to.
- Another misconception will be that AD stands for 'After Death'. Make sure that pupils realise that AD is meant to mark the birth of Christ, not his death, and stands for 'Anno Domini', meaning 'in the year of the lord'.
- Annotate a map of Northern Europe, labelling the departure of the Roman army, the arrival of the Angles and Saxons, and the spread of Anglo-Saxon settlement within the British Isles.
- Draw a chart comparing features of Anglo-Saxon Britain (population, occupations, landscape, beliefs, settlements, and so on.) with today.

Sources

- Study various artefacts from Sutton Hoo, such as the golden belt buckle, purse lid and shoulder clasps. The Sutton Hoo helmet has an excellent resource available online via the British Museum's Teaching History with 100 Objects project. Use these artefacts to write an account of the life led by the Anglo-Saxon king to whom they belonged.

- Similarly, study some of the artefacts from the Staffordshire Hoard and build a picture of Anglo-Saxon life from what it contains.
- Extracts from Gildas, Concerning the Ruin of Britain. A Romano-British monk living in the 6th century, Gildas provides the only surviving written source of the Anglo-Saxon conquest of Britain. His account is a vivid description of what he calls 'savage' and 'dark' times.

Thinking deeper questions

1. How were the Anglo-Saxons different from the Romans who lived in Britain before them?
2. Why are archaeological findings so important for learning about Anglo-Saxon life?

Unit 1: Anglo-Saxon England

Chapter 2: Anglo-Saxon rule

Recap

- The arrival of the Anglo-Saxons and their way of life once they settled in England.
- The Roman history of Britain before the Anglo-Saxon invasions of the 5th century.
- Vocabulary to recap: Anglo-Saxon; century.

Key vocabulary

Archbishop of Canterbury	The most senior bishop in the English Church, and leader of the Church of England
Illumination	Richly decorated religious manuscript from the medieval period
Mercia	Anglo-Saxon kingdom in central England, covering what is today called the Midlands
Monk	A man who dedicates his entire life to God, and lives outside of normal society
Pagan	Someone who believes in many different gods
Vellum	A writing material made from the skin of sheep or calves, before the invention of paper
Wessex	Anglo-Saxon kingdom stretching across southern England

Key dates

597 Augustine arrives in England to convert the Anglo-Saxons to Christianity

731 The Venerable Bede completes The Ecclesiastical History of the English People

Key people

Augustine A monk sent from Rome who converted the Anglo-Saxons to Christianity and became the first Archbishop of Canterbury

Bede An English monk who wrote the first history of England

King Offa King of Mercia who built a 149-mile long earthwork between England and Wales

Check your understanding

1. How was England divided up during the early Anglo-Saxon period?
Answer: During the early Anglo-Saxon period, England was divided up into a number of separate kingdoms, each ruled by its own king. Three of the most powerful kingdoms were Wessex, Mercia and Northumbria.
2. Which counties in England are named after the south, east and west Saxons?
Answer: Sussex, Essex and Wessex are named after the south, east and west Saxons.
3. How did four days of the week gain their names in the English language?
Answer: Four days of the week in the English language gained their names through Anglo-Saxon gods. Tuesday is named after the god Tiw, Wednesday is named after Woden, Thursday is named after Thor, and Friday is named after Freya.
4. Why are Canterbury and York the two centres of English Christianity today?
Answer: Canterbury and York are the two centres of English Christianity because they are the two locations where Christianity first spread to the Anglo-Saxons. In Canterbury, a monk named Augustine converted the King of Kent to Christianity. In Northumbria, a monk named Aiden founded the monastery of Lindisfarne.
5. Why is there more evidence about Anglo-Saxon life during the period after Christianity arrived?
Answer: There is more evidence about Anglo-Saxon life during the period after Christianity arrived because Christianity brought writing and study to England. This means that there are more written Anglo-Saxon sources from the 7th century onwards.

Suggested activities

- Complete a chart listing all of the Anglo-Saxon words that we use today, such as: place-names, days of the week, regions of England and religious festivals.
- Use the Oxford Dictionary of British Place-Names website (requires subscription) or A. D. Mills, A Dictionary of British Place-Names, to research place-names that are local to your school. You can see whether they have Anglo-Saxon origins. Pupils could be tasked with matching the explanations of the place-names, with the place. For example, 'the village (ham) belonging to Snotta' would be 'Nottingham'.
- Annotate a map of Britain, labelling all of the old Anglo-Saxon kingdoms: Wessex, Kent, Essex, East Anglia, Mercia and Northumbria. Pupils could then add descriptions of events from early Anglo-Saxon history in their relevant locations, such as Sutton Hoo, Augustine's mission, Aidan's mission, Bede's writing and Offa's Dyke.

Sources

- Anglo-Saxon manuscript illuminations, such as the 'Lindisfarne Gospels'. Available online via the British Library.
- Bede's account of Augustine's mission to convert the English to Christianity, from his Ecclesiastical History of the English People.

Thinking deeper questions

1. How did the arrival of Christianity change Anglo-Saxon England?
2. Do you think it is accurate to refer to the Anglo-Saxon period as the 'Dark Ages'?

Unit 1: Anglo-Saxon England

Chapter 3: The Vikings

Recap

- The arrival of the Anglo-Saxons and their way of life once they settled in England.
- Anglo-Saxon Christianity and the way in which Christianity changed life in Anglo-Saxon England.
- Vocabulary to recap: Anglo-Saxon; monk.

Key vocabulary

Blood eagle	A notorious Viking method for killing their enemies
Danegeld	Large sums of money given to Vikings to prevent further invasions
Great Heathen Army	A large force of Viking warriors who invaded England during the 9th century
Jorvik	The centre of Viking power in England, on the site of modern day York
Longboat	A Viking ship, which combined both sails and oars
Vikings	Seafaring people from Scandinavia who raided and traded across Europe and Russia

Key dates

793 The Vikings attack the monastery on Lindisfarne

865 The invasion of the 'Great Heathen Army'

Check your understanding

1. Why did Viking raiders target Christian monasteries?

Answer: Viking raiders targeted Christian monasteries because they were famed for their gold and precious treasures, which is what the Vikings were after on their raiding missions.

2. Why was the longboat so important to the Vikings?

Answer: The longboat was so important for the Vikings because it allowed them to travel great distances by both sea and river. Using longboats, Vikings managed to travel as far as Canada and Russia.

3. How large was the Great Heathen Army?

Answer: Nobody knows how large the Great Heathen Army was, but estimates range from 1000 to 6000.

4. What did Vikings believe awaited them if they died in battle?

Answer: If they died in battle, Vikings believed they would be taken to the glorious Viking heaven of Valhalla. Here, they would feast on wild boar, drink beer and prepare for one final battle of the gods, known as 'Ragnarök'.

5. What city became the centre of Viking power in England?

Answer: York became the centre of Viking power in England. It was known as 'Jorvik', and became a thriving centre of trade, home to perhaps 15 000 people.

Suggested activities

- Write a first-hand account from a monk who witnessed, but managed to survive, the Viking attack on Lindisfarne, describing what took place.

Sources

- The letter from the Anglo-Saxon scholar Alcuin to Ethelred, King of Northumbria in AD 793, recording the Viking attack on Lindisfarne.
- The account of the Arabic scholar and traveller Ahmad ibn Fadlan describing Viking settlers he encountered whilst travelling to modern day Russia in AD 922.
- Artefacts found in the Jorvik Artefact Gallery, available online via the Jorvik Viking Centre.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think such a small force of Vikings were able to conquer most of England so easily?
2. What can you tell about Viking society from their idea of heaven – Valhalla?

Unit 1: Anglo-Saxon England

Chapter 4: Alfred the Great

Recap

- The geography of Anglo-Saxon England and its division into different kingdoms.
- The Viking raids on Anglo-Saxon England and the invasion of the Great Heathen Army, which led to significant Viking settlement in England.
- The differences between Anglo-Saxons and Vikings, in terms of lifestyle, religion, and place of origin.
- Vocabulary to recap: Danegeld; longboats; Vikings; Wessex.

Key vocabulary

Anglo-Saxon Chronicle	A contemporary history of England, begun during the reign of Alfred the Great
Burh	A fortified town which ruled a local area
Danelaw	English territory given over to Viking rule
Fyrd	Part-time Anglo-Saxon army which could be called to fight at times of war
Latin	A classical language spoken by the Romans and used by the Catholic Church

Key dates

871 Alfred the Great is crowned King of Wessex

878 Alfred the Great defeats the 'Great Heathen Army' at the Battle of Edington

899 Alfred the Great dies

Key people

Alfred the Great The Anglo-Saxon King of Wessex who defeated the Great Heathen Army

Guthrum Viking king who was defeated by Alfred and given the Danelaw to rule

Check your understanding

1. What Anglo-Saxon kingdom did Alfred rule?

Answer: Alfred ruled the Anglo-Saxon kingdom of Wessex, which he became king of in AD 871.

2. On what day did Guthrum's army first attack Alfred in 878?

Answer: Guthrum's army first attacked Alfred in 878 on Twelfth Night, the last day of Christmas. He did this so that Alfred and his men would be caught by surprise.

3. What agreement did Alfred come to with Guthrum after the Battle of Edington?

Answer: Alfred forced Guthrum to convert to Christianity, and even made himself Guthrum's godfather. The two kings then agreed to divide England from the River Mersey in the north-west to the Thames in the south-east, with the Vikings ruling the 'Danelaw' north of this line.

4. What did Alfred do to ensure that Wessex remained safe from future Viking attacks?

Answer: To ensure that Wessex remained safe from future Viking attacks, Alfred built a series of around 30 fortress towns throughout Wessex known as 'burhs'. He also organised a part-time Anglo-Saxon army known as the 'fyrd', and established a naval force that would sail around the country protecting it from Viking longboats.

5. Why did Alfred want to learn to read and write in Latin?

Answer: Alfred wanted to read and write Latin so that he could translate important books – particularly about Christianity – into Old English, helping to spread Christianity amongst his people.

Suggested activities

- Draw a storyboard charting the different stages of Alfred the Great's conflict with King Guthrum.

Sources

- The 'Alfred Jewel', made out of gold and enamel and found in 1693 near Athelney. Available via the British Museum or the Ashmolean Museum.
- The statue of Alfred the Great, erected in Winchester on the one thousandth anniversary of his death in 1899.
- Alfred's preface to his translation from Latin into English of Pastoral Care by Pope Gregory. In it, he explains how the Viking raids had set back the progress of learning in England, and explains why he views reading, writing and study to be of the utmost importance.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think Alfred is remembered as 'the Great'?
2. What do you think the legend of Alfred and the cakes is supposed to tell us about his character?

Unit 1: Anglo-Saxon England

Chapter 5: The Anglo-Saxon Golden Age

Recap

- The Viking raids on Anglo-Saxon England and the invasion of the Great Heathen Army, which led to significant Viking settlement in England.
- Alfred's defeat of King Guthrum and their agreement to establish the border between Wessex and the Viking Danelaw.
- Vocabulary to recap: Anglo-Saxon Chronicle; burh; Danelaw; Mercia; Viking.

Key vocabulary

Earl	A noble title, developed during the Anglo-Saxon period to describe the ruler of a county
Empire	A group of countries or states presided over by a single ruler
Golden Age	A period of flourishing in the history of a nation or an art form
Shire	Individual county, meaning 'area of control' in Old English
Witan	A collection of Anglo-Saxon noblemen and senior clergymen who advised the king

Key dates

937 Æthelstan's victory at The Battle of Brunanburh confirms Anglo-Saxon rule of all England

1016 The Viking ruler Canute becomes king of England

Key people

Æthelflæd The 'Lady of the Mercia' who helped expel the Vikings from England

Æthelstan Grandson of Alfred the Great, who unified England as one country

Canute Viking King of England, who famously could not hold back the tide

Check your understanding

1. Why did King Edward send his son to be brought up by his aunt Æthelflæd?
Answer: King Edward sent his son to be brought up by his aunt Æthelflæd because he was so impressed by her successes as the 'Lady of Mercia', winning back Mercia from the Vikings.
2. Why was the Battle of Brunanburh such an important victory for the Anglo-Saxons?
Answer: The Battle of Brunanburh was such an important victory for the Anglo-Saxons because it confirmed Æthelstan's rule of all England. By defeating a combined Scottish, Viking and Northumbrian army, he established control over this last outpost of Viking power.
3. What was significant about the reign of Alfred's grandson Æthelstan?
Answer: The reign of Alfred's grandson Æthelstan marks the first time, since the Roman conquest, that England could be described as a single unified country.
4. What role did the Witan play in the government of England?
Answer: The Witan was a collection of Anglo-Saxon noblemen and senior members of the Church who were summoned by the king to offer him advice and discuss important issues.
5. What did King Canute do to win the favour of the Anglo-Saxon people he ruled?
Answer: To win the favour of the Anglo-Saxon people he ruled, King Canute (who was a Viking) allowed Anglo-Saxon Earls to keep their land, and he paid off his own Viking army with an enormous Danegeld of £90 000.

Suggested activities

- Complete an annotated family tree of Alfred the Great's descendants, who went on to rule a unified English kingdom. This should include his son Edward, his daughter Æthelflæd, his grandson Æthelstan and his great-great-grandson Æthelred the Unready.
- Draw a chart comparing 6th century Anglo-Saxon England with 10th century Anglo-Saxon England, focusing on one area, such as government, religion, settlement or literacy.

Sources

- 'The Benedictional of St Æthelwold', a manuscript made for the personal use of Æthelwold, Bishop of Winchester, around AD 970. Available online via the British Library. Pupils study some of its illustrations, such as the Baptism of Christ or Christ's entry into Jerusalem, and use their knowledge from Religious Education to consider which Bible story the illustrations depict.
- The poem, 'The Battle of Brunanburh', from the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, which gives a vivid account of Æthelstan's victory.

Thinking deeper questions

1. What point was King Canute trying to prove by ordering the tide not to advance?
2. Why do you think this period is sometimes called the Anglo-Saxon 'Golden Age'?

Unit 2: Norman England

Chapter 1: Saxon, Norman or Viking?

Recap

- The creation of England as a single kingdom by Alfred the Great's decedents from the Anglo-Saxon House of Wessex.
- Viking invasions and settlement in England, from the first raids at the end of the 8th century, to the reign of King Canute.
- Vocabulary to recap: Earl; Viking; Wessex; Witan.

Key vocabulary

Exile	Being forced to live outside your native country, typically for political reasons
Heir	A person set to inherit property or a title, often used to mean next in line to the throne
Illegitimate	Not recognised as lawful, once used to describe someone born of unmarried parents
Noble	Member of the nobility, with land and titles that are passed down through successive generations
Normans	People from a region in northern France, who were descended from Viking invaders
Oath	A solemn promise, often said to be witnessed by God
Omen	An event that is thought to foretell the future, perhaps as a message from the gods
Royal blood	Possessed by those who are blood relatives of a ruling monarch

Key dates

1051 Edward the Confessor promises the English throne to William, Duke of Normandy

1064 Harold Godwinson swears an oath of loyalty to William, Duke of Normandy

1066 (Sept) The Battle of Stamford Bridge

Key people

Edward the Confessor An Anglo-Saxon king of England whose death triggered the Norman invasion

Harald Hardrada A fierce Viking warrior, who made a claim for the English throne in 1066

Harold Godwinson The last Anglo-Saxon king of England, who led the Saxons at the Battle of Hastings

William, Duke of Normandy A French Duke who conquered England in 1066

Check your understanding

1. Why was the death of Edward the Confessor met with such confusion?
Answer: The death of Edward the Confessor was met with such confusion because he did not have any children who could claim to be the legitimate heir. Instead, three different men claimed the English throne.
2. What was Harold Godwinson's claim to the English throne?
Answer: Harold Godwinson's claim to the English throne was that Edward the Confessor had chosen him as his successor on his deathbed. In addition, Harold was England's most powerful Earl, an excellent fighter and popular amongst Anglo-Saxon nobles.
3. What was William of Normandy's claim to the English throne?
Answer: William of Normandy's claim to the English throne was that King Edward the Confessor had promised him the English throne in 1051. In addition, he was a distant cousin of Edward the Confessor, and the Pope supported his claim to the throne.
4. What was Harald Hardrada's claim to the English throne?
Answer: Harald Hardrada believed that England still belonged to the Vikings, as it had during the days of King Canute.
5. How did Harold Godwinson defeat Hardrada's Viking army?
Answer: Harold Godwinson defeated Hardrada's army by marching his army from the south of England to the north in just four days, and catching the Viking army completely by surprise. Many Vikings did not even have time to put on their armour.

Suggested activities

- Complete a table for each of the three claimants to the throne in 1066, answering the following questions: 'Who were they?'; 'What was their claim to the throne?'; and 'How strong was their claim to the throne?'

Sources

- Accounts of the battle from the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle and the Heimskringla, a 13th century saga about the Viking kings written in Iceland.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Who had the best claim to the English throne in 1066: Harold Godwinson, William of Normandy or Harald Hardrada?
2. Why do you think it was seen as so important for a king to have 'royal blood'?

Unit 2: Norman England

Chapter 2: The Battle of Hastings

Recap

- The three claimants to the English throne following the death of Edward the Confessor in 1066.
- Harold Godwinson's victory over Harold Hardrada at the Battle of Stamford Bridge.
- Vocabulary to recap: fyrd; Norman; omen.

Key vocabulary

Bayeux Tapestry	A 70-metre long embroidered cloth depicting William of Normandy's conquest of England
Conquest	Taking control of a place or people through military force
Disembowel	To cut someone open and remove their internal organs
Huscarls	The professional body guard of Anglo-Saxon kings
Knight	Soldiers on horseback who belonged to the nobility

Key dates

1066 (Oct) The Battle of Hastings

Check your understanding

1. What stroke of luck did William, Duke of Normandy enjoy at the end of September?

Answer: At the end of September, William, Duke of Normandy enjoyed a stroke of luck when the unfavourable winds across the English Channel changed direction, allowing him to set sail. His army was able to cross unchallenged as Harold Godwinson had already called in his navy, thinking William's chance to invade had gone.

2. Why did Harold Godwinson hurry into fighting the Norman army?

Answer: Harold Godwinson hurried into fighting the Norman army without resting his army because he wanted to surprise William's Norman army just as he had surprised Hardrada's Viking army.

3. Who had the stronger army at the start of the Battle of Hastings: the Normans or the Saxons?

Answer: At the start of the Battle of Hastings the Normans had the stronger army. They outnumbered the Saxon army by 10 000 to 8 000, and had 3 000 heavily armoured knights on horseback – who were like the tanks of medieval Europe.

4. How did the Norman army's false retreat give them the chance to win the battle?

Answer: The Norman army's false retreat gave them the chance to win the battle because it caused the Saxon army to break out of their formation and chase off the retreating Normans. When the Normans regrouped, they were able to pick off and kill the disorganised Saxons.

5. What story does the Bayeux Tapestry tell?

Answer: The 70-metre long Bayeux Tapestry tells the entire story of William of Normandy's conquest of England.

Suggested activities

- From information learnt in this lesson and the previous lesson, annotate a map of the British Isles showing the different events of the summer of 1066, emphasising the movement of Harold's army.
- Draw a storyboard charting the different stages of the Battle of Hastings.
- Pupils match different scenes from the Bayeux Tapestry with the different key events of the Norman invasion, such as: the death of King Edward the Confessor; the Normans crossing the channel; William removing his helmet to show he is still alive; the death of King Harold.

Thinking deeper questions

1. What do you think was the most serious mistake that the Saxons made during the Battle of Hastings?
2. To what extent was luck the main reason the Normans won the Battle of Hastings?

Unit 2: Norman England

Chapter 3: The Norman Conquest

Recap

- William, Duke of Normandy's invasion of England, and his defeat of Harold Godwinson's Saxon army at the Battle of Hastings.
- Vocabulary to recap: Anglo-Saxon; knight; noble; Norman.

Key vocabulary

Motte-and-bailey Castle	A simple fortification with an artificial hill and a defensive courtyard
Royal court	A collection of nobles and clergymen, known as courtiers, who advise the king

Key dates

1066 (Dec) William I crowned King of England

1069 The Harrying of the North

Key people

Hereward the Wake A legendary Saxon rebel who held out against the Norman invaders in Ely

Check your understanding

1. Why did William the Conqueror's coronation end in violence?

Answer: William the Conqueror's coronation ended in violence because Norman knights guarding the coronation mistook cheers from inside the Abbey as a revolt. In response, they burnt the surrounding houses and killed many of the Englishmen present.

2. What happened to the land belonging to England's Anglo-Saxon noblemen?

Answer: Land belonging to England's Anglo-Saxon noblemen was seized from their families by William I and given to his Norman knights as a reward for fighting for him in the conquest of England.

3. What did William the Conqueror do to punish the rebels who rose up against him in the north-east?

Answer: To punish the rebels who rose up against him in the north-east, William the Conqueror burnt to the ground every village between York and Durham. He slaughtered farm animals, destroyed crops and laced the fields with salt so that no more food could be grown. Much of the population was killed or starved to death.

4. How did William the Conqueror finally defeat Hereward the Wake?

Answer: William the Conqueror finally defeated Hereward the Wake by building a two-mile wooden causeway across the marshes, allowing the Norman knights to ride into Ely, and to defeat the Saxon rebels.

5. What was one of the tactics William used to ensure loyalty from the Anglo-Saxon nobility?

Answer: One tactic that William used to ensure loyalty from the Anglo-Saxons was to demand a noble's son as a hostage. If the noble proved to be disloyal, his son would be killed.

Suggested activities

- Write an account, from the perspective of William the Conqueror, justifying his brutality during the Harrying of the North.

Sources

- The account of the Harrying of the North by the Anglo-Saxon chronicler Orderic Vitalis.
- Descriptions of William the Conqueror's character from contemporary chroniclers William of Jumièges and William of Poitiers.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think William the Conqueror responded so harshly to rebellions against his rule?
2. How did England change during the years immediately following the Norman Conquest?

Unit 2: Norman England

Chapter 4: The feudal system

Recap

- William, Duke of Normandy's invasion of England, and his defeat of Harold Godwinson's Saxon army at the Battle of Hastings.
- The Norman Conquest of England.
- Vocabulary to recap: Earl; knight; Norman; royal blood.

Key vocabulary

Baron	The highest rank of medieval society, ruling land directly on behalf of the king
Bishop	A Christian clergyman with authority over a large number of priests and churches
Domesday Book	A book commissioned by William the Conqueror detailing the possessions of every settlement in England
Fealty	A pledge of loyalty from a feudal vassal to their lord
Feudal system	The structure of medieval society, where land was exchanged for service and loyalty
Hereditary	Passed through a family, from parents to their children
Hierarchy	A form of social organisation where people are ranked according to status or power
Lord	A general term for a medieval landholder, or a member of the peerage today
Peasant	The lowest member of medieval society, usually a farm labourer
Subject	A member of a country or territory under the rule of a monarch
Vassal	Anyone who was below you in medieval society, and had to call you 'my lord'

Key dates

1086 William the Conqueror commissions the Domesday Book

Check your understanding

1. What was the shape of medieval English society?

Answer: Medieval English society had a clear hierarchy, shaped like a large pyramid. The few at the top were the strongest, and the many at the bottom were the weakest.

2. In return for being granted land, what did Barons do for the king?

Answer: In return for being granted land, barons paid homage to the king and swore him an oath of fealty. This meant that if ever there was a war, the barons had to fight on behalf of their king.

3. What powers did a medieval lord have over the peasants who worked his land?

Answer: Medieval lords were able to force their peasants to work their land for their entire lives. They could control whether their peasants married or left their home.

4. Why did William the Conqueror commission the Domesday Book to be written?

Answer: William the Conqueror commissioned the Domesday Book to be written so that he knew precisely what his newly conquered land of England contained. Once he knew this, he could tax the people of England accordingly to pay for his armies and castles.

5. How did the Domesday Book earn its nickname?

Answer: The Domesday Book earned its nickname because 'Domesday' is another name for the Day of Judgement, when Christians believe that Jesus Christ will return to the Earth and pass judgement on the living. In the same way, their new king was forcing them to declare all of their possessions so that he could pass judgement on them.

Suggested activities

- Introduce the concept of a social hierarchy through an analogy with a school's staffing structure: head; assistant heads; heads of departments; teachers; pupils.
- Annotate a diagram of the feudal society by explaining the roles of the king, the barons, the knights and the peasants. Also, draw arrows to symbolise how land is passed downwards, and money and loyalty are passed upwards.
- For the Domesday Book, use the Domesday Book online database to find a place familiar to your pupils. Study what it possessed in 1086, and then write a contemporary's description of how it would have appeared.

Sources

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think medieval society was structured according to the feudal system?
2. Why do you think the Domesday Book is such a helpful and important source for historians?

Unit 2: Norman England

Chapter 5: The Norman monarchs

Recap

- The reign of William the Conqueror.
- Vocabulary to recap: Anglo-Saxon Chronicle; exile; heir; Wessex.

Key vocabulary

Anarchy	A state of disorder caused by a lack of law or authority
Anglo-Norman	The ruling class in England after 1066, composed of Normans who had settled in England
Civil war	A war between two sides from the same nation
Monarch	A royal head of state, can be a king, queen or emperor

Key dates

1088 Death of William the Conqueror

1100 Death of William Rufus in the New Forest

1106 Henry I becomes King of England and Normandy

1120 The sinking of the White Ship

1135 The start of 'the Anarchy'

Key people

Empress Matilda The daughter of Henry I, who fought for the English throne during 'the Anarchy'

Henry I The youngest son of William the Conqueror who defeated his brothers to become King

William II The middle son of William the Conqueror, he was nicknamed 'Rufus' due to his red hair

Check your understanding

1. How did William the Conqueror split his Empire between his three sons when he died?

Answer: When he died, William the conqueror gave Normandy to his eldest son Robert, England to his middle son William and £5000 to his youngest son Henry.

2. What were the suspicious circumstances surrounding William II's death?

Answer: The circumstances surrounding William II's death were suspicious because he was accidentally shot with a bow and arrow by his close friend Walter Tirel, even though Tirel was known for being a good archer. Tirel then died later that year in exile in France.

3. Which of William the Conqueror's three sons eventually ended up ruling England?

Answer: William the Conqueror's youngest son Henry I ended up ruling England. He achieved this through becoming King following the death of his brother William II in the New Forest, and then taking on Normandy by defeating his brother Robert on the battlefield, then imprisoning him.

4. Why did the sinking of the White Ship in 1120 throw England into a state of confusion?

Answer: The sinking of the White Ship in 1120 threw England into a state of confusion because it killed Henry I's only son and heir. This meant that two cousins claimed the throne following Henry I's death: his daughter the Empress Matilda and his nephew Stephen.

5. Why was the civil war between Stephen and Matilda so unpleasant for the English population?

Answer: The civil war between Stephen and Matilda was so unpleasant for the English because it led to the break-down in law and order. Great areas of the country had no royal authority, and the cruel barons used this as an excuse to terrorise their vassals.

Suggested activities

- Annotate a family tree detailing what happened to William the Conqueror; his three sons Robert, William and Henry; Henry I's children William Adelin and the Empress Matilda; and Stephen of Blois.

Sources

- The account of the reign of King Stephen from the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, written in 1128.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why might the death of William Rufus in the New Forest not have been an accident?
2. Why was there so much conflict between Norman monarchs following the death of William the Conqueror?

Unit 3: Medieval life

Chapter 1: The medieval village

Recap

- The feudal structure of medieval society, in particular the relationship between peasants and their lord.
- Vocabulary to recap: Archbishop of Canterbury; feudal system; peasant.

Key vocabulary

Croft	An area of land surrounding a peasants' dwelling, used to grow crops or keep livestock
Demesne	Land kept by a lord, which peasants were obliged to farm on his behalf
Manor	The house at the centre of a medieval lord's lands
Pottage	A stew of vegetables and grains, eaten by peasants for their main meal
Strip farming	The division of large fields into many narrow strips worked different peasants
Tithe	A medieval tax, paying one tenth of all farm produce to the Church
Wattle and daub	Woven sticks, covered in a mixture of mud, clay, animal dung and horsehair

Check your understanding

1. How did the proportion of people in medieval England who farmed the land differ from today?
Answer: During the medieval period, around 90 percent of the population worked the land. Today, the proportion of England's population who farm the land is one percent.
2. What did peasants have to do in return for being given strips of land by their lord?
Answer: In return for being given strips of land to farm by their lord, peasants had to spend around three days each week farming the lord's land. The lord's land was known as the demesne.
3. When would medieval peasants harvest their crops?
Answer: Medieval peasants would harvest their crops during the late summer. They would wait for a few days of sunny weather to dry the crops, and then harvest them as quickly as possible. All other jobs would stop so that everyone in the village would take part.
4. Why did peasants keep live farm animals inside their homes?
Answer: Peasants would keep live farm animals inside their homes to provide heat during the winter. As their homes were small single room huts, the heat from the animals could spread quickly.
5. What would usually happen during a medieval holy day?
Answer: During a medieval holy day, the lord of the manor would provide a feast and entertainments, and the whole village celebrated together. The lord might provide meat and ale – often little actual religious worship took place.

Suggested activities

- Label a map or illustration of a medieval village, picking out important features such as strip farming, crofts, demesne, fallow fields, the manor, the mill, and the Parish church.
- Look up the surnames of pupils in your class and see whether any of them originate from medieval jobs.

Thinking deeper questions

1. In what ways did medieval peasants lack freedom?

2. Why do you think 90 percent of medieval society had to work as farmers, compared with only one percent today?

Unit 3: Medieval life

Chapter 2: The medieval castle

Recap

- The feudal structure of medieval society, in particular the relationship between barons and knights.
- Vocabulary to recap: baron; motte-and-bailey castle.

Key vocabulary

Breach	A gap in a wall or line of defence, made by an attacking army
Concentric castle	A castle with rings of two or more curtain walls
Crenellations	Gaps running along the top of the wall of a medieval castle
Keep	A large stone building at the heart of a medieval castle
Moat	A ditch dug to prevent attackers from reaching the wall of a castle
Siege	Surrounding an enemy castle allowing nobody to come in or out
Siege Tower	A large wooden tower that could be used to climb up and over castle walls
Trebuchet	An advanced form of catapult, using a counterweight and a sling
Undermining	Digging beneath a castle wall, and lighting a fire which causes the walls to fall in

Check your understanding

- 1. What were the advantages and disadvantages of a motte-and-bailey castle?
Answer: The advantage of a motte-and-bailey castle was that it was cheap and easy to build. It simply involved digging a ditch, creating an artificial hill, and building wooden towers and walls. However, the disadvantages of such a castle were that the wood would soon be rotting, and it could easily be burnt down.
- 2. What was the chief aim of a castle's design?
Answer: The chief aim of a castle's design was to make it impossible for enemies to enter. It was a defensive structure.
- 3. What was the main aim for an army attacking a castle?
Answer: The main aim for an army attacking a castle was to create a hole in the wall, called a breach, through which their army could enter.
- 4. How would a siege ensure that an enemy army could eventually take a castle?
Answer: A siege was the last resort for an army attacking a castle. A siege would ensure that the army could take the castle by surrounding it, and allowing nobody to come in or out. The inhabitants would slowly starve to death, until they surrendered.
- 5. Where did European knights learn about the technology for concentric castles?
Answer: European knights learnt about the technology for concentric castles during the crusades, where they saw concentric castle designs in Byzantium and the Islamic world.

Suggested activities

- Complete a chart listing all of the different means of defending or attacking a castle, drawing a simple image for each, and explaining how it worked.
- Look at photographs of surviving British castles and identify their key features. Possible castles include: Kenilworth, Bodiam, Rochester, Dover, Warwick, Caernarvon, Beaumaris. Having studied their key features, write a plan for how they could best be attacked.
- Read case studies of famous individual sieges, such as King John's siege of Rochester Castle in 1215, or Henry VI's siege of Rouen in 1418.

Sources

- Photographs of the reconstructed motte-and-bailey castle in Saint-Sylvain-d'Anjou, France.

Thinking deeper questions

1. What do you think was the best method for attacking a castle?
2. Why do you think that the arrival of gunpowder in medieval England made castles useless?

Unit 3: Medieval life

Chapter 3: The medieval knight

Recap

- The feudal structure of medieval society, in particular the relationship between barons and knights.
- Vocabulary to recap: knight.

Key vocabulary

Armour	Metal covering worn by knights to protect themselves in battle
Chain-mail	A form of armour consisting of small interlocking metal rings
Chivalry	A code of behaviour for medieval knights, emphasising bravery and good manners
Duel	A fight, often to the death, between two people used to settle an argument
Gauntlet	An armoured glove, and the origin of the saying 'throw down the gauntlet'
Heraldic crest	A symbol or design to show the identity of a knight on the battlefield
Squire	The personal servant to a knight, normally aged between 14 and 21

Check your understanding

1. What jobs did a squire perform for a knight?

Answer: A squire was a personal servant to the knight, and the word comes from the French for 'shield-holder'. He would follow his knight into battle, and perform essential tasks for him – most importantly helping him put on his suit of armour.

2. What was the final stage that a squire went through before becoming a knight?

Answer: The final stage that a squire went through before becoming a knight was their dubbing ceremony. During this ceremony, the squire would kneel on one knee in front of his lord, who would tap him on the shoulder with the flat of his sword. He would then arise a knight.

3. What weapons could be used to penetrate a knight's coat of armour?

Answer: The weapons which could penetrate a knight's coat of armour included a bodkin arrowhead, or a short stabbing sword which could be thrust through the gaps in a suit of armour.

4. What sort of values and behaviour were encouraged by the idea of chivalry?

Answer: The idea of chivalry encouraged 'courtly manners'. These might include being brave, truthful, godly, gentle, faithful and fearless. In particular, knights were expected to defend the honour of woman and children.

5. For what purpose were heraldic crests first developed?

Answer: Heraldic crests were first developed to identify a knight in a full suit of armour on the battlefield. They were placed on colourful 'surcoats' which covered the knight's armour, but also on their shield and on their horse.

Suggested activities

- Create a storyboard telling the process by which a young nobleman trains to become a knight, passing from page, to squire, to the dubbing ceremony and finally becoming a knight.
- Based on a source showing medieval warfare, such as the 'Crusader Bible', write an imaginary account of what it would have been like to have fought in such a battle.
- Study the legend of King Arthur, and consider how different aspects of the story: the round table, Camelot, Guinevere, Lancelot, and so on, appeal to the ideal of chivalry.
- Compare the use of heraldic crests with branding and badges for sports teams today. Some national sports teams still use imagery for their badges that can be traced back to the medieval period.

Sources

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think that medieval society expected knights to be chivalrous?
2. Why do you think the life of a knight was so highly valued on the medieval battlefield?

Unit 3: Medieval life

Chapter 4: The medieval Church

Recap

- The arrival of Christianity in Anglo-Saxon England during the 6th and 7th century, and its replacement of earlier pagan beliefs.
- The role of the Church in the feudal system.
- Vocabulary to recap: Archbishop of Canterbury; bishop; monk.

Key vocabulary

Benefit of the Clergy	The privilege enjoyed by clergymen to be tried in Church courts
Cathedral	A large and impressive church that contains the seat of a bishop
Catholicism	One of the three major branches of Christianity, led from Rome, by the Pope
Clergy	Officials of the Christian Church, ordained to lead Church services
Doom Painting	A painting showing people being sent to heaven or hell on the Day of Judgement
Monastery	A building housing a religious community of monks or nuns
Nun	A woman who dedicates her entire life to God, and lives outside of normal society
Pilgrimage	A religious journey, typically taken to a shrine or a site of religious importance
Pope	Leader of the Catholic Church, he lives in Rome and is believed to be God's representative on Earth
Purgatory	A stage before heaven, where the dead are purged of any remaining sins
Relic	An object of religious significance, often the physical or personal remains of a saint
Superstition	The belief in supernatural powers, in place of rational explanation
Tonsure	The hairstyle of a medieval monk, supposed to represent Christ's crown of thorns

Key people

Geoffrey Chaucer The greatest English poet of the medieval period, and author of the Canterbury Tales

Check your understanding

1. What powers did the medieval Pope have?

Answer: The Pope was the head of the Christian Church, and his power spread across Western Europe. He could start wars, appoint churchmen in foreign countries and end a king's reign through expelling him from the Church.

2. What services did monasteries and abbeys provide for their local community?

Answer: Monasteries and abbeys were central to the functioning of their local community. They provided education, hospitals, theatrical performances, historical records and welfare for the poor.

3. Why did popular religion need to be so vivid, dramatic and colourful during the medieval period?

Answer: Popular religion during the medieval period needed to be vivid, dramatic and colourful because most people could not read. Therefore, they gained their religious understanding through images, rituals and performances.

4. What fate did medieval people believe awaited those who sinned on Earth?

Answer: Medieval people believed that those who sinned on Earth would suffer unspeakable cruelty in purgatory and hell. The sort of tortures one could expect were depicted in medieval 'Doom Paintings'.

5. Why did the people of medieval England go on pilgrimage?

Answer: The people of medieval England went on pilgrimage in order to visit a place of religious significance, such as Canterbury, Rome or Jerusalem. These journeys were dangerous, and difficult to complete, so in return pilgrims believed they would gain forgiveness for their sins, the cure to a disease or disability, or good fortune in life.

Suggested activities

- Complete a hierarchy pyramid for the medieval Church, similar to that completed for the feudal system, working through the Pope, cardinals, archbishops, bishops and abbots, priests and monks, the laity.
- Read an extract from the Canterbury Tales.
- Write a daily routine for the life of a monk in a medieval monastery.

Sources

- Study the remains of some famous religious houses in England, such as Fountains Abbey; Tintern Abbey; Whitby Abbey; Byland Abbey; Glastonbury Abbey.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think medieval Christianity placed such a strong emphasis on sinners suffering in hell?
2. Do you think that medieval Christianity was different from Christianity today?

Unit 3: Medieval life

Chapter 5: Crime and punishment

Recap

- The feudal structure of medieval society, in particular the relationship between barons and knights.
- The role and power of the Christian Church in medieval society.
- Vocabulary to recap: knight, lord, manor, peasant.

Key vocabulary

Common Law	The expectation that penalties for crimes should be 'common' throughout the country
Ducking stool	A wooden chair attached to a lever, used to submerge a criminal under water
Stocks	A punishment for petty criminals, where wooden boards locked a criminal in place
Trial by jury	A trial where 12 people consider the evidence and decide on the verdict
Trial by ordeal	A trial according to a painful test, where will of God was believed to decide the verdict

Check your understanding

1. Where would a peasant be tried if they had committed a crime?

Answer: If a peasant committed a crime, they would be tried by their lord in a local manorial court. No lawyers were used, and cases normally took around 15 minutes.

2. During a trial by ordeal, who was believed to reveal the guilt or innocence of the accused?

Answer: During a trial by ordeal, God was believed to reveal the guilt or innocence of the accused. For example, in trial by boiling water, if the defendant's wound healed, then it was believed that God must have intervened to prove the defendant's innocence.

3. Why were punishments such as the stocks or the ducking stool carried out in public?

Answer: Medieval punishments such as the stocks or the ducking stool were carried out in public to ensure that other people were discouraged from committing the same crimes. The punishments were designed to humiliate the criminal and give them a sense of shame.

4. Which king reformed the English legal system, and introduced trial by jury?

Answer: Henry II reformed the English legal system and introduced trial by jury. He appointed judges to travel the country, administering the 'King's law' for important cases, so it would be fairer and more consistent than the decision of a baron or lord.

5. What is meant by 'English Common Law'?

Answer: English Common Law means the expectation that penalties for particular crimes should be 'common' throughout the country, to achieve fairness and consistency.

Suggested activities

- Complete a chart listing all of the different punishments that existed for medieval crimes, and explaining 'What did the punishment entail?' and 'How was it designed to humiliate and shame the criminal?'
- Based on some case studies of medieval crimes, pupils devise a medieval crime that has occurred, and have it tried in the classroom, acting out the 'King's law' with a judge and jury.

Sources

- Investigate case studies of medieval crimes. Many original cases are available online via the National Archives' Crime and Punishment page.
- Image of heretics being burnt at the stake from 1487, available via the British Library.

Thinking deeper questions

1. What can you learn about the way medieval people thought from their approach to crime and punishment?
2. Why do you think that the people of medieval England put their faith in trial by ordeal?

Unit 4: Medieval kingship

Chapter 1: Henry II (1154–1189)

Recap

- The 19-year civil war between Stephen and the Empress Matilda that began in 1135, a period often known as the anarchy.
- Henry II's legal reforms, introducing Common Law and travelling courts administering the King's justice.
- The role and power of the Christian Church in medieval society.
- The role of the Archbishop of Canterbury as head of the English Church.
- Vocabulary to recap: anarchy; Archbishop of Canterbury; benefit of the clergy; illegitimate; monk; pilgrimage; Pope.

Key vocabulary

Angevin Empire	An Empire ruled by Henry II, stretching from Scotland to the Pyrenees
Aquitaine	Large medieval Duchy covering south-west France, ruled by Queen Eleanor
Martyr	A person who is killed for their beliefs, often religious

Key dates

1154 Henry II is crowned King of England

1170 Henry II accidentally orders the murder of Thomas Becket

Key people

Henry II English king who accidentally orders the murder of his own Archbishop of Canterbury

Thomas Becket A Medieval Archbishop of Canterbury who was killed for his opposition to the king

Check your understanding

1. Why was it said that Henry II and Thomas Becket were ‘but one heart and one mind’?
Answer: It was said that Henry II and Thomas Becket were ‘but one heart and one mind’ because they were great friends. They enjoyed hunting and drinking together, and Henry even sent his son to be brought up in Becket’s household.
2. How did Becket change when he became Archbishop of Canterbury?
Answer: When he became Archbishop of Canterbury, Becket became intensely religious. He stopped drinking and took to wearing an uncomfortable shirt made of animal hair to show his godliness. In addition, he stopped standing up for Henry II, and instead defended the Church.
3. What was the final straw which caused Becket to go into exile in France for four years?
Answer: The final straw for Henry II which caused Becket to go into exile in France for four years was when Becket lost his temper in the King’s court, and called Henry’s illegitimate brother a ‘bastard’.
4. How did Henry II cause four knights to travel to Canterbury and kill Thomas Becket?
Answer: Henry II caused four knights to travel to Canterbury and kill Thomas Becket when he shouted ‘will nobody rid me of this turbulent priest’. This caused the four knights to travel to Canterbury Cathedral and kill Becket.
5. What did Henry II do in response to Thomas Becket’s death?
Answer: In response to Thomas Becket’s death, Henry II, in 1174, walked to Canterbury in bare feet and a hair shirt, and once there, he was whipped by the monks and bishops of Canterbury before spending the night sleeping beside Becket’s shrine.

Suggested activities

- Create a storyboard telling the story of Thomas Becket’s friendship with Henry II, leading all the way to his murder in Canterbury Cathedral.
- Write a first-hand account from a witness who watched Henry II arriving in Canterbury Cathedral and being whipped by its monks and bishops. Explain why it is so surprising to see a king seeking forgiveness and allowing himself to be punished.

Sources

- Manuscript miniature of the martyrdom of Thomas Becket, from the collection of Alan of Tewkesbury. Available online via the British Library.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think Henry II needed to seek forgiveness after causing Thomas Becket's death?
2. What does Becket's story say about the relationship between the king and the Church in medieval England?

Unit 4: Medieval kingship

Chapter 2: King John (1199–1216)

Recap

- The reign of Henry II, in particular his rule over the Aquitaine Empire.
- The role and power of the Christian Church in medieval society.
- The role of the Archbishop of Canterbury as head of the English Church.
- Though pupils may not have studied them yet, it would be worth giving a brief explanation of the Crusades.
- Vocabulary to recap: civil war; Pope.

Key vocabulary

Excommunication	Expulsion from the Catholic Church by the Pope
Habeas Corpus	The principle that no person should be imprisoned without first having a fair trial
Interdict	A law ruled by the Pope which temporarily shuts down the Church in a country or area
Magna Carta	A series of promises that King John made to limit his power, meaning 'the Great Charter'
Tyrant	A ruler who refuses to share their power, and governs in a cruel and oppressive way

Key dates

1199 King John is crowned King of England after the death of his brother Richard

1215 The barons force King John to sign the Magna Carta

Key people

King John English king seen as a tyrant who is forced to sign the Magna Carta

Check your understanding

1. What is King John believed to have done to his nephew Arthur, and why?
Answer: King John is believed to have tied Arthur to a stone and drowned him in the River Seine. He might have done this because Arthur also had a claim to the English throne, so was a threat to King John's reign.
2. Why were the people of England so angry about the interdict of 1209?
Answer: The people of England were so angry about the interdict of 1209 because for five years English churches were locked to worshippers. No English church could hold services, marry couples, baptise children or bury dead bodies. People, unable to attend church services, feared they would go straight to hell.
3. How did King John treat those he disliked, or who betrayed him?
Answer: King John treated those he disliked in a cruel fashion. For example, he took 22 knights who had supported Arthur's claim to the throne, and locked them in a dungeon in Corfe Castle, where they starved to death.
4. What are some of the promises included in Magna Carta?
Answer: Some of the promises in Magna Carta included not raising tax without the barons' permission; not imprisoning people without a fair trial; and not trying to control the English Church.
5. How did the Magna Carta have a lasting legacy following the death of King John?
Answer: The Magna Carta had a lasting legacy following the death of King John, as future monarchs were expected to reconfirm the agreement made between King John and his barons. This meant they vowed never to rule as a tyrant, and the Magna Carta became a foundational document for English political rights and freedoms.

Suggested activities

- Create a mind map of all of the negative actions that King John took as king, causing his people to start to turn against him.
- Having studied the tyrannical nature of King John's reign, ask pupils to draw up their own clauses for a Magna Carta-style document. Then see how closely their clauses align with the real thing.
- There are a number of Magna Carta related resources available online via the British Library, the National Archives and Parliament.

Sources

- The Magna Carta. A modern English translation is available online via the British Library.
- Medieval accounts of King John, such as those by Matthew Paris and Roger of Wendover.

Thinking deeper questions

1. What does the story of Magna Carta tell us about the relationship between a medieval king and his barons?

2. Why do you think that monks, in particular, disliked King John?

Unit 4: Medieval kingship

Chapter 3: Edward I (1272–1307)

Recap

- King John's struggles against the barons.
- Though pupils may not have studied them yet, it would be worth giving a brief explanation of the Crusades.
- Vocabulary to recap: bishop; noble.

Key vocabulary

Homage	The practice of giving an annual payment to your lord to show that you are their vassal
Hanged, drawn and quartered	A gruesome execution, often used against those who commit treason
Parliament	A collection of people representing all of England, who approve or refuse laws
Prince of Wales	A title granted since the reign of Edward I to the heir to the English throne
Stone of Destiny	A large block of sandstone historically used for the coronation of Scottish monarchs
Treason	A crime against your own people, nation or monarch

Key dates

1272 Edward I returns from his crusade to be crowned King of England

1283 Edward I conquers Wales and executes Daffyd ap Gruffyd

1305 Edward I executes the rebel Scottish leader William Wallace

Key people

Edward I English king known as the 'Hammer of the Scots'

Llywelyn ap Gruffyd The last Princes of Wales, prior to its conquest by Edward I

William Wallace A rebel knight who led the resistance to Edward I's conquest of Scotland

Check your understanding1. Why did Edward I decide to invade Wales?

Answer: Edward I decided to invade Wales because a Welsh prince named Llywelyn ap Gruffyd did not attend Edward's coronation in 1272, and refused to pay homage to the new king. This suggested that the Prince of Wales no longer intended to be a vassal of the English king.

2. What did Edward I do to punish Dafydd ap Gruffyd?

Answer: To punish Dafydd ap Gruffyd, Edward I had him dragged through the streets by a horse, hanged until almost dead, disembowelled with his entrails burnt in front of him and then cut into four pieces which were sent around England. This gruesome execution became known as being 'hanged, drawn and quartered'.

3. How did Edward I earn the nickname the 'Hammer of the Scots'?

Answer: Edward I earned the nickname the 'Hammer of the Scots' due to the infamous brutality of his army towards the Scots. He took just 21 days to conquer the country, slaughtering Scottish rebels.

4. Why did Edward I fail to bring Scotland under English control?

Answer: Edward I failed to bring Scotland under English control, because he did not have the funds to keep control of his newly conquered Scotland. Rebellions broke out, led by the likes of William Wallace and Robert the Bruce. When, in 1307, Edward I led an army north to win back Scotland, he died during the march.

5. Why did Edward I call Parliament to meet in 1295?

Answer: Edward I called Parliament in 1295 to raise money for his campaigns in Scotland and Wales. He believed that 'what touches all should be approved by all', so he wanted the agreement of his people before he started increasing the taxes they were expected to pay.

Suggested activities

- Start with a quiz on the geography of the British Isles, with questions such as what is the difference between England and Great Britain?
- Study some of the castles built by Edward I in Wales, such as Beaumaris, Harlech and Caernarfon.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Would you agree with one historian's verdict that Edward I was a 'great and terrible king'?
2. Why was Wales ruled by England from 1283 onwards?

Unit 4: Medieval kingship

Chapter 4: Henry V (1413–1422)

Recap

- The Aquitaine Empire during the reign of Henry II, and the historic claim to lands in France made by English kings.
- Vocabulary to recap: civil war; Parliament.

Key vocabulary

Calais	French port town, which for two centuries was an English territory
Depose	To suddenly or forcefully remove a monarch from power
Dysentery	An infection of the intestines that causes severe diarrhoea
Hundred Years War	A long conflict between England and France beginning in the 14th century
Longbow	A six foot bow, used to great effect by the English during the late medieval period
Man-at-arms	A heavily armed medieval soldier on horseback, but not necessarily a feudal knight
Palings	A barrier made from pointed wooden or metal poles to defend against cavalry charges

Key dates

1413 Henry V is crowned King of England

1415 Henry V wins the Battle of Agincourt

Key people

Henry V English king who won the Battle of Agincourt

Check your understanding

1. What did Henry V learn to do, which was unusual for an English king during this period?

Answer: Henry V learnt to read and write in English, which was unusual for a medieval king. This greatly aided royal administration.

2. What gave Henry the perfect opportunity to invade France in 1415?

Answer: Henry V was given the perfect opportunity to invade France in 1415 when it became engulfed in civil war during the reign of the mad king Charles VI.

3. In what condition was Henry V's English army before the Battle of Agincourt?

Answer: Henry V's English army was in a very bad way before the battle of Agincourt. For almost a month, they had trudged through constant rain with very few supplies, following the siege of Harfleur. They were cold, weak, wounded and hungry.

4. Why were English longbowmen crucial to the English victory at Agincourt?

Answer: The English longbowmen were crucial to the English victory at Agincourt because they were able to rain down a storm of arrows on the French men-at-arms. The French were a sitting target, as they had been trapped in muddy ground with forests pinning them in on either side.

5. Why was Henry V never able to claim his title as King of both England and France?

Answer: Henry V was never able to claim his title as King of both England and France as he died a month too early. The Treaty of Troyes agreed that Henry V would marry Charles VI of France's daughter, Catherine, and rule England and France after Charles's death. However, Charles outlived him.

Suggested activities

- Annotate a map of the battlefield at Agincourt to understand Henry V's 'impossible victory' against the French.
- Read and perform the 'St Crispin's Day Speech' from Shakespeare's Henry V.

Sources

- Images from Froissart's Chronicles of the Hundred Years War, such as the Battle of Crecy in 1346. This was an important victory for England in the Hundred Years War, and Froissart's depiction emphasises the importance of the longbow for the English army.
- The eye-witness account of the Battle of Agincourt from Jehan de Wavrin, the son of a Flemish knight, who watched the battle from the French lines.

Thinking deeper questions

1. What was more important in securing victory at Agincourt: English tactics or French mistakes?
2. What actions did Henry V take to ensure that he was popular amongst the people he ruled?

Unit 4: Medieval kingship

Chapter 5: Medieval queens

Recap

- The reign of Henry II, the husband of Eleanor of Aquitaine.
- The reign of Edward I, the father of Isabella of France's husband.
- Though pupils may not have studied them yet, it would be worth giving a brief explanation of the Crusades.
- Vocabulary to recap: Aquitaine; baron; chivalry; hanged, drawn and quartered.

Key vocabulary

Depose	To suddenly or forcefully remove a monarch from power
Regent	Someone who is appointed to rule on behalf of a monarch, when the monarch is too young, infirm or absent to rule

Key dates

1204 Eleanor of Aquitaine dies

1308 Isabella of France marries Edward II

1326 Isabella of France deposes Edward II

Key people

Eleanor of Aquitaine Wife of Henry II and one of the most powerful women in medieval Europe

Isabella of France English queen who deposed her own husband, Edward II

Check your understanding

1. Why were women unlikely to hold political power during the medieval period?
Answer: Women were unlikely to hold political power during the medieval period as they were expected to be meek and gentle, and power was intimately related to physical prowess. For this reason, it was seen as unnatural for a woman to hold power.
2. In what ways was Eleanor's marriage to Henry II more successful than her marriage to Louis VII?
Answer: Eleanor's marriage to Henry II was more successful than her marriage to Louis VII because they had five sons together, and (though they often fell out) they remained married until Henry II's death. In comparison, her marriage to Louis VII lasted only five years, and the slow-witted Louis was not a good match for the high-spirited and intelligent Eleanor.
3. How did Eleanor wield power during the reigns of her sons, Richard I and King John?
Answer: Eleanor wielded power during the reign of her son Richard I by acting as his regent when he left England to fight in the Third Crusade. During the reign of her son King John, Eleanor wielded power by travelling through France and Spain negotiating alliances on his behalf.
4. Which two male courtiers became Edward II's favourites, and what happened to each of them?
Answer: Piers Gaveston was Edward II's first court favourite, but in 1312 he was captured by a group of barons and executed. Edward II then gained a new favourite called Hugh Despenser. Despenser was hated by many in England, and after Isabella and Mortimer invaded England in September 1326, they captured him and had him hanged, drawn and quartered.
5. What did Isabella of France do which makes her unique amongst English queens?
Answer: Isabella of France had her husband Edward II arrested and imprisoned in Berkeley Castle, where he eventually died. This makes Isabella the only queen in English history to depose her own husband.

Suggested activities

- Write an obituary for either Eleanor of Aquitaine or Isabella of France, explaining what an extraordinary and unusual life the woman in question led for a medieval queen.

Sources

- The Chinon mural. Discovered in 1964, many believe it to depict Eleanor of Aquitaine in procession during the marriage of her son King John.
- The effigy of Eleanor of Aquitaine in Fontevraud Abbey, France.
- There are many illustrations from the story of Edward II and Isabella of France from Froissart's Chronicles, including the execution of Hugh Despenser in 1326.

- A 15th century manuscript illustration of Isabella of France with Roger Mortimer, from the Chronicles of Jehan de Wavrin. Available online via the British Library.

Thinking deeper questions

1. How were Eleanor of Aquitaine and Isabella of France both able to gain so much political power?
2. Why do you think people in medieval Europe saw it as unnatural for a woman to hold political power?

Unit 5: The Crusades

Chapter 1: The Islamic world

Recap

- Any background knowledge that pupils may have about Islam, in particular its history, from Religious Education or elsewhere.
- Make a link between the fall of Rome in AD 476 (relevant to the Byzantine Empire) and the departure of the Romans from Britain in AD 410, leading to the Anglo-Saxon period in English history.
- Vocabulary to recap: empire; hereditary.

Key vocabulary

Byzantium	A Greek speaking offshoot of the Roman Empire, with Constantinople as its capital city
Caliphate	An Islamic Empire, ruled by a religious leader known as the Caliph
Constantinople	The capital of the Byzantine Empire, and modern day Istanbul
Eastern Orthodox Church	Eastern form of Christianity, followed by the Byzantines
House of Wisdom	A great library founded by the Abassid caliph al-Mamun in Baghdad
Islam	A major world religion, begun by the Prophet Muhammad around AD 610
Jews	An ethnic and religious group, belonging to the ancient religion of Judaism
Mecca	Birthplace of the Prophet Muhammad and Islam's most important site of pilgrimage
Shia	Minority branch within Islam, which holds that Ali ibn Abi Talib was the rightful Caliph
Sunni	The largest branch of Islam, which opposed Ali ibn Abi Talib as Caliph

Key dates

632 The Prophet Muhammad dies, having established the Islamic religion

661 Ali ibn Abi Talib is assassinated leading to the split between Sunni and Shia Muslims

750 The Abbasid Caliphate replaces the Umayyad, moving the capital from Damascus to Baghdad

Key people

Prophet Muhammad A merchant from Mecca who founded the Islamic religion

Check your understanding

1. How far had the Islamic Empire spread by 750?

Answer: By 750, the Islamic Empire spread from Spain's Atlantic coast in the West to the edge of India in the East. Muslim forces had conquered Syria by 638, Persia by 651 and Spain by 711.

2. Why did it become difficult to rule the caliphate as a unified state with a single leader?

Answer: It became difficult to rule the caliphate as a unified state with a single leader due to its ongoing expansion. As the Islamic Empire grew bigger and bigger, it became more and more difficult to control it with one central government.

3. Why did a split emerge between the Sunni and the Shia branches of Islam?

Answer: A split emerged between the Sunni and Shia branches of Islam due to a disagreement about how the title of caliph should be decided. The Shia branch of Islam believed that it should pass through Muhammad's family, whilst the Sunni branch believed it should not necessarily be a hereditary role.

4. What was the 'House of Wisdom' in Baghdad?

Answer: The 'House of Wisdom' in Baghdad was created by the Abbasid caliph as a great library, where people could study mathematics, astronomy, chemistry and philosophy. It also kept alive the classical texts of Ancient Greece and Rome.

5. How did the Byzantine Empire develop from the Roman Empire?

Answer: The Byzantine Empire can be traced back to the 4th century, when the Roman Empire was divided and Byzantium became the capital of the Eastern Roman Empire. After the fall of Rome in 476, the Byzantine Empire survived for another 1000 years.

Suggested activities

- Annotate a large map of Southern Europe, North Africa and the Middle East. Pupils label Mecca; the Arabian Peninsula; Damascus (the centre of the Umayyad Caliphate until 750); Baghdad (the centre of the Abbasid Caliphate from 750); Egypt (the centre of the Shia Fatimids); Al-Andalus in Spain; Constantinople and the Byzantine Empire. Pupils then shade in the extent of the Islamic world by AD 750, and the extent of the Byzantine Empire during the same period.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think Islam spread so quickly and became so powerful in the medieval world?
2. Why do you think learning and culture flourished in the Islamic world during the medieval period?

Unit 5: The Crusades

Chapter 2: The First Crusade

Recap

- The Islamic world of the medieval period, and the nature and extent of the Byzantine Empire.
- Vocabulary to recap: Byzantium; Constantinople; Islam; Jews; Prophet Muhammad; Shia; Sunni.

Key vocabulary

Asia Minor	A peninsula with the Mediterranean Sea to the south and the Black Sea to the north
Crusade	A religiously inspired war, the word comes from the Latin 'crux' meaning 'cross'
Dome of the Rock	Islamic shrine where Muhammad is believed to have ascended to heaven
Holy Land	An area of religious significance for three faiths on the Mediterranean's eastern shore
Holy Sepulchre	Site of Christian pilgrimage, where the body of Jesus Christ is believed to be buried
Jerusalem	Historic city, of major religious importance for Christianity, Islam and Judaism
Seljuk Turks	A Sunni Muslim tribe who conquered Jerusalem in 1079

Key dates

1079 Seljuk Turks seized control of Jerusalem from the Fatimids

1095 Pope Urban II launches the First Crusade

1099 Crusaders capture Jerusalem, creating the Kingdom of Jerusalem

Key people

Godfrey of Bouillon Crusader knight who led the siege of Jerusalem and became its first Christian ruler

Urban II The Pope who began the First Crusade with a speech in Clermont

Check your understanding

1. Why is Jerusalem a place of major importance for three world religions?
Answer: Jerusalem is a place of major importance for three world religions: Christians, Muslims and Jews. For Christians, it is the home of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. For Muslims, it is the home of the Dome of the Rock. And for Jews, it is the home of the Wailing Wall.
2. What did the Pope promise to Christian knights who agreed to take part in the First Crusade?
Answer: The Pope promised Christian knights who agreed to take part in the First Crusade that they would have all of their previous sins forgiven and be granted a guaranteed place in heaven.
3. Who led the First Crusade?
Answer: The First Crusade was led by a group of noblemen from France, Germany and Italy. They included a knight called Raymond of Toulouse; Robert Duke of Normandy, the eldest son of William the Conqueror; and Bohemond of Taranto, a knight from Southern Italy.
4. Why did the crusaders resort to looting as they made their way towards Jerusalem?
Answer: The crusaders resorted to looting as they made their way towards Jerusalem as they quickly ran out of food and water marching through the endless miles of hot, dry terrain. Thus, they had to loot nearby villages to survive.
5. How did the crusaders behave once they had broken into Jerusalem?
Answer: Once the crusaders had broken into Jerusalem, they massacred the Muslim and Jewish population, killing, torturing and burning alive an estimated 10 000 men, women and children. This butchery by the crusader knights shocked the Muslim world.

Suggested activities

- On a map of Europe and the Middle East, draw an illustrated route of the journey taken by those fighting in the First Crusade, starting with Pope Urban II's address in Clermont, passing through Asia Minor, Nicaea and Antioch, and ending in Jerusalem.

Sources

- The speech made by Pope Urban II in 1095 in Clermont, starting the First Crusade.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think Pope Urban II's speech was so successful in persuading knights to join his crusade?

2. Why do you think the crusader knights behaved as they did once they reached Jerusalem?

Unit 5: The Crusades

Chapter 3: Crusader states

Recap

- The Islamic world of the medieval period, and the nature and extent of the Byzantine Empire.
- The First Crusade and the Siege of Jerusalem.
- King John's behaviour during the reign of Richard I.
- Vocabulary to recap: Byzantium; crusade; Holy Land; Jerusalem.

Key vocabulary

Acre	Important crusader port city, and their last stronghold in the Holy Land
Crusader State	New feudal states that were created in the Holy Land by European knights
Jihad	An Islamic term meaning 'struggle', often used to describe a holy war
Sultan	The Arabic title for a ruler or emperor

Key dates

1144 The Second Crusade ends in defeat after a failed attack on the city of Damascus

1187 Saladin captures Jerusalem, having defeated the crusader force at the Battle of Hattin

1192 The Third Crusade ends with peace between Richard I and Saladin

Key people

Baldwin I The first Christian King of Jerusalem

Richard I English king and brother of King John, known as 'the Lionheart'

Saladin Muslim warrior, who captured Jerusalem from the crusaders in 1187

Check your understanding

1. What did the Crusader knights establish having conquered Jerusalem?
Answer: Having conquered Jerusalem, the Crusader knights established a network of crusader states, which they ruled. These included the Kingdom of Jerusalem, Antioch and Edessa.
2. Why did the Second Crusade end in failure?
Answer: The Second Crusade ended in failure because the force led by Louis VII of France and Conrad III of Germany, decided to ignore the original aim of reclaiming Edessa, and instead attacked the larger and wealthier city of Damascus. The crusader force withdrew from Damascus after three days, and returned to Europe empty-handed.
3. Why did Richard the Lionheart decide against laying siege to Jerusalem in 1192?
Answer: Richard the Lionheart decided against laying siege to Jerusalem in 1192 because he doubted his ability to take the city. His soldiers were exhausted, and the weather was dreadful.
4. What was agreed in the 1192 peace between Richard the Lionheart and Saladin?
Answer: The 1192 peace between Richard the Lionheart and Saladin agreed that Jerusalem would remain in Muslim hands, but the crusaders were allowed to keep the valuable strip of coastal land around Acre. In addition, Christians were given full permission to visit Jerusalem on pilgrimage.
5. How did Saladin gain his reputation for being merciful?
Answer: Saladin gained his reputation for being merciful through acts of surprising kindness towards his enemies. For example, when Richard was suffering from a terrible fever during the summer of 1192, Saladin sent him peaches and sherbet cooled with snow from nearby mountains to help him recover.

Suggested activities

- To inform a piece of writing comparing Saladin and Richard the Lionheart, complete a chart comparing their various attributes and weaknesses.
- Add further information to the map from previous lessons, such as: crusader states in Antioch and Edessa; the Second Crusade and Damascus; Richard the Lionheart in Cyprus; and the Siege of Acre.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Who do you think won the Third Crusade – Richard the Lionheart or Saladin?
2. Why do you think Saladin behaved as he did towards his enemies?

Unit 5: The Crusades

Chapter 4: Life as a crusader knight

Recap

- The Islamic world of the medieval period, and the nature and extent of the Byzantine Empire.
- The First Crusade and the Siege of Jerusalem.
- The establishment of crusader states, and the Second and Third Crusades.
- Vocabulary to recap: armour; crusade; Holy Land; monk.

Key vocabulary

Knights Hospitaller	An elite order of crusader knights, originally formed to run a hospital for pilgrims
Knights Templar	An elite order of crusader knights, named after the Temple Mount in Jerusalem
Saracen	Term used by crusaders to describe Muslim soldiers, taken from the Greek word for Arab

Check your understanding

- 1. How much has one historian estimated it cost a poor knight to go on crusade?
Answer: One historian has estimated that going on crusade cost four times the annual income of a poor knight. This was because he not only had to pay for himself, but also for weapons, armour, equipment, food and a small entourage of foot soldiers and servants.
- 2. Why was the armour of European knights unsuited to fighting in a crusade?
Answer: The armour of European knights was unsuited to fighting in a crusade as the scorching heat of the summer caused the knight to reach unbearable temperatures, and rain and snow caused armour to rust during the winter.
- 3. In what ways did European crusaders adopt 'Eastern' ways once they settled in the Holy Land?
Answer: The sort of 'Eastern' ways European crusaders adopted once they settled in the Holy Land included washing regularly, eating Middle Eastern food, wearing turbans, marrying local women and learning to speak the local languages.
- 4. What was the social status of Muslims living under Christian rule in the Holy Land?
Answer: The social status of Muslims living under Christian rule in the Holy Land was always lower than the European settlers who ruled over them.
- 5. What were the Knights Templar and Knights Hospitaller?
Answer: The Knights Templar and Knights Hospitaller were military orders of crusader knights. Like monks, they lived together, took vows of poverty, chastity and obedience. However, they were also fighters, feared for their discipline and devotion.

Suggested activities

- Based on life in the Holy Land, draw a chart listing all of the reasons why a European might choose to fight in the Crusades, according to 'greed', 'glory' or 'God'.
- Write a letter from a crusader knight living in the Holy Land, persuading a family member to 'take to the cross' and come and join him, living and fighting in the Holy Land.

Thinking deeper questions

1. What do you think was the main motivation for European knights to go on crusade?
2. Why do you think military orders developed in the crusader states?

Unit 5: The Crusades

Chapter 5: The end of the Crusades

Recap

- The Islamic world of the medieval period, in particular its intellectual and cultural wealth, and the nature and extent of the Byzantine Empire.
- The First Crusade and the Siege of Jerusalem.
- The establishment of crusader states, and the Second and Third Crusades.
- See whether pupils remember from having studied castles that the design of a concentric castle came to Europe from castles witnessed in the Islamic world and Byzantine Empire.
- Vocabulary to recap: Acre; Byzantium; Constantinople; Holy Land.

Key vocabulary

Anti-Semitism The prejudice against and persecution of Jews as an ethnic group

Mamluks An Islamic dynasty formed by slave-soldiers which conquered Acre in 1291

Key dates

1204 The Fourth Crusade ends with the sacking of Constantinople

1212 The so-called 'Children's Crusade' leaves Europe for the Holy Land

1291 The last crusader stronghold of Acre falls to Mamluk invaders, ending the Crusades

Key people

Alexios Angelos Byzantine Emperor who invited the Fourth Crusade to invade Constantinople

Check your understanding

1. What deal did the crusaders strike with the Byzantine prince Alexios during the Fourth Crusade?

Answer: The crusaders during the Fourth Crusade struck a deal with Alexios Angelos that they would help him take back his father's throne. In return, he would pay them the money they required to complete their journey to the Holy Land.

2. Why did the crusaders turn against Alexios and sack Constantinople in 1204?

Answer: The crusaders turned against Alexios and sacked Constantinople in 1204 because once Alexios was made Emperor, he was unable to raise the money he had promised the crusaders. This caused relations to grow bitter.

3. What event marked the end of the Crusades, and when did it take place?

Answer: The end of the Crusades can be said to be marked by the fall of Acre to a new force of Muslim warriors called the Mamluks in 1291. Acre was the last crusader possession in the Holy Land, after it fell, the crusader presence in the Holy Land was over.

4. What ideas and technologies did crusaders bring back to Europe from the Islamic world?

Answer: Crusaders brought many ideas and technologies back to Europe from the Islamic world. These included soap, mirrors, magnifying glasses, our modern numerals and algebra. The lute and the board game chess also came to Europe from the Islamic world during this period. So too did many texts from Ancient Greece and Rome which had been kept alive by Arabic translations.

5. What effect did the Crusades have on the lives of Jews living in Europe?

Answer: The Crusades had a negative effect on the lives of Jews living in Europe. They were increasingly seen as being enemies of Christ, similar to Muslims. For this reason, they were massacred in France and Germany during the First Crusade, and expelled from many European countries during the following centuries.

Suggested activities

- Complete a chart on the four crusades, for each one answering the questions: 'Who led it?'; 'Where did they attack?'; 'What was the outcome of the crusade?'
- Create an illustrated mind map of all of the new things that came to Europe from the Islamic world due to the Crusades.

Sources

- Account of the 'Sack of Constantinople' by Nicetas Choniates, a Byzantine historian. Available online via the Fordham University Medieval Sourcebook.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think the outcome of the Fourth Crusade harmed the reputation of crusader knights?

2. Did the crusades hold any lasting benefits for Europe after the last crusaders stronghold fell in 1291?

Unit 6: Late medieval England

Chapter 1: The Black Death

Recap

- Life in a medieval village and the power of the medieval Church.
- Vocabulary to recap: Jews; superstition.

Key vocabulary

Black Death	A plague that devastated medieval Europe in the 14th century
Buboes	Onion-shaped swellings that were usually the first symptom of the Black Death
Bubonic plague	The most common variant of the plague, named after the swellings on victims' bodies
Flagellant	Member of a religious sect who whipped themselves in punishment for their sins
Miasma	The theory that disease is caused by the spreading smell of a poisonous cloud of 'bad air'
Pestilence	Another term for disease, and one of the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse
Pneumonic plague	An even more lethal variant of the plague, which attacks the lungs

Key dates

1348 The Black Death hits England

Check your understanding

1. What proportion of England's population was killed by the Black Death?
Answer: Within two years, the Black Death killed between one third to one half of England's population.
2. What were the symptoms of the bubonic plague?
Answer: The first symptoms of the bubonic plague were large swellings known as 'buboes' which appeared in victims' armpits and between their legs and were said to resemble an onion. These buboes then spread to the rest of the victim's body, followed by blue or black blotches. Sufferers then started to vomit and spit blood, suffer from seizures and foul smelling breath. After around two or three days, they would die.
3. What was the most common explanation for the Black Death?
Answer: The most common explanation for the Black Death was that it was a punishment sent down by God, who had been angered by greed and sin on Earth.
4. How were dead bodies dealt with in towns and cities during the Black Death?
Answer: In towns and cities during the Black Death, dead bodies were thrown into mass graves, but these were often little more than ditches with a thin layer of earth to cover the dead.
5. Why did flagellants think that whipping themselves would save them from the Black Death?
Answer: Flagellants believed that whipping themselves would save them from the Black Death because if they punished themselves, God would not see the need to punish them also with the plague.

Suggested activities

- Draw images of people suffering from the two variants of the Black Death, the pneumonic and the bubonic plagues.
- Create a chart of all of the different explanations given for the Black Death, answering questions such as: 'What was the explanation?'; 'Why might medieval people have thought this?'; 'How sensible was this explanation?'

Chapter 2: The Peasants' Revolt

Recap

- The feudal system, in particular the relationship between a peasant and their lord.
- Life in a medieval village and the power of the medieval Church.
- The spread and impact of the Black Death.
- Vocabulary to recap: Black Death; feudal system; hierarchy; Hundred Years War; lord; peasant.

Key vocabulary

Peasants' Revolt	A major uprising across England that took place 30 years after the Black Death
Poll Tax	A flat rate tax paid by all adults, literally meaning 'per head' of the English people
Protector	A nobleman ruling on the behalf of a young monarch until they come of age
Savoy Palace	John of Gaunt's sumptuous medieval home, destroyed during the Peasants' Revolt
Statute of Labourers	A 1351 law which fixed the maximum wage for peasants at pre-Black Death levels
Sumptuary Laws	Rules explaining what clothing different ranks within the feudal system could wear
Yeomen	A new class in late medieval England: commoners who farmed their own land

Key dates

1381 The Peasants' Revolt

Key people

John of Gaunt The powerful uncle of Richard II who ruled on his behalf

Wat Tyler Leader of the Peasants' Revolt, thought to have been a yeoman from Kent

Check your understanding

1. How did the government respond to the growing wealth and power of medieval peasants?

Answer: The government responded to the growing wealth and power of medieval peasants by trying to stop it from growing any further. In 1351, the Statute of Labourers was passed, which fixed peasant wages at the pre-Black Death levels. In 1363, the Sumptuary Laws were passed, laying out in detail what different classes were allowed to wear. These laws were designed to keep the peasants in their place.

2. Why was the Poll Tax so unpopular among medieval peasants?

Answer: The Poll Tax was unpopular among medieval peasants because all adults over the age of 14 had to pay the same price, rich or poor. This was unfair on the peasants, who had far less money than their lords.

3. What parts of England did the peasants who took part in the revolt come from?

Answer: The peasants who took part in the revolt came from Essex, where a revolt in the town of Brentwood turned into open rebellion against the king. In addition, 4000 peasants came from the nearby county of Kent, led by a yeoman named Wat Tyler.

4. What did the peasants do once they reached London?

Answer: Once they reached London, the peasants stormed Newgate and Westminster prisons, burned John of Gaunt's Savoy Palace to the ground, and executed the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Lord High Treasurer.

5. How did Wat Tyler die?

Answer: Wat Tyler died during his negotiations with Richard. Some say Tyler attacked Richard's men, others that he rudely spat on the ground. Either way, a struggle ensued during which Tyler was run through with a sword and killed.

Suggested activities

- In order to understand the changing labour market and property market after the Black Death, ask the class to consider what the consequences would be for workers' pay and property prices if half the population today were to die in the space of three years.
- Create a storyboard explaining the progress of the Peasants' Revolt.
- Write a speech in the guise of either Wat Tyler or John Ball persuading the peasants of Essex and Kent to march on London.

Key dates

1453 King Henry VI goes mad

1459 War breaks out between the House of Lancaster and the House of York

1460 The Duke of York is defeated at the Battle of Wakefield, and killed

1461 Edward IV is crowned King of England

1461 The Yorkists defeat the Lancastrians at the Battle of Towton

Key people

Edward IV Son of the Duke of York, he was the first Yorkist King during the Wars of the Roses

Henry VI The mad Lancastrian King at the start of the Wars of the Roses

Margaret of Anjou The French wife of Henry VI, who took charge of the House of Lancaster

Check your understanding

1. In what way was Henry VI different from his father, Henry V?

Answer: Henry VI was very different to his father Henry V. Whilst Henry V was the hero of Agincourt, and a great fighter on the battlefield, Henry VI hated the idea of war, and was the first medieval king never to lead his army on the battlefield. He preferred books and churches to fighting, and many of his noblemen believed he was a coward.

2. Why did many nobles, such as the Duke of York, believe Henry VI was incapable of ruling England?

Answer: Many nobles, such as the Duke of York, believed Henry VI was incapable of ruling England because he suffered repeated bouts of madness. He would become completely unresponsive to anything around him, and had to be cared for like a new-born child.

3. Who led the House of Lancaster at the beginning of the Wars of the Roses?

Answer: At the beginning of the Wars of the Roses, the House of Lancaster was led by Henry VI's French wife Margaret of Anjou.

4. Who was crowned as the first Yorkist King of England in March 1461?

Answer: Edward IV was crowned the first Yorkist King of England in March 1461. He had taken charge of the Yorkist side following the death of his father at the battle of Wakefield in December 1460.

5. What can be learnt about the Battle of Towton from the skeletons that have been found on the site?

Answer: From the skeletons that have been found on the site, we can learn that the Battle of Towton saw an extreme level of brutality and violence. Skulls found at the site were covered with more than 20 wounds, suggesting that soldiers mutilated the dead bodies of their enemies.

Suggested activities

- Complete a chart with the opposing reasons on either side for why one would have supported the Lancastrians or the Yorkists at the start of the Wars of the Roses.
- Complete a case study of the gruesome Battle of Towton, which is thought to be the largest battle ever fought on English soil.

Sources

- The account of the Battle of Towton from Edward Hall, a 16th century chronicler.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why do you think that many people in England were willing to fight for the Yorkists?
2. Why do you think the fighting between the Lancastrians and the Yorkists was so savage?

Unit 6: Late medieval England

Chapter 4: Yorkist rule

Recap

- The outbreak of the Wars of the Roses, and the coronation of the Yorkist Edward IV in 1461.
- Vocab to recap: Lancastrian; Wars of the Roses; Yorkist.

Key vocabulary

Protector	A nobleman ruling on the behalf of a young monarch until they come of age
The Kingmaker	A nickname given to the Earl of Warwick during the Wars of the Roses

Key dates

1470 Warwick the Kingmaker placed Henry VI back on the throne

1471 Edward IV wins back his throne at the Battle of Barnet, and Henry VI dies

1483 King Richard III seizes the English throne following the death of his brother

Key people

Elizabeth Woodville The wife of Edward IV, who controversially did not come from a noble family

The Earl of Warwick A powerful nobleman who helped both Henry VI and Edward IV take the throne

Check your understanding

1. What role did the Earl of Warwick play when Edward IV became king?
Answer: When Edward IV became king, the Earl of Warwick was the power behind the throne. He had groomed Edward to become king from an early age, and guaranteed the support of the nobles for the new king.
2. Why were Edward VI's subjects, in particular Warwick, so shocked by his marriage?
Answer: Edward VI's subjects, in particular Warwick, were shocked by Edward VI's marriage to Elizabeth Woodville because she was a commoner. Such a marriage was unheard of for a king, who was expected to form a tactical alliance by marrying into another royal family.
3. On what basis did Richard III make himself King of England in place of his nephew Edward V?
Answer: Richard III made himself King of England in place of his nephew Edward V on the basis that the marriage between Edward IV and Elizabeth Woodville was invalid. This meant that Edward V was not their legitimate child.
4. How did Shakespeare depict Richard III in his play, written a century after Richard's death?
Answer: Shakespeare depicted Richard III in his 1592 play as an ugly hunchback with a withered arm. How far this depiction is true is a source of debate.
5. What did the findings of Professor W. Wright appear to show in 1933?
Answer: The findings of Professor W. Wright in 1933 appeared to show that the skeletons found hidden behind a staircase in the Tower of London were of two boys, aged around eleven and thirteen, with a red mark on the bones indicating a bloodstain – something commonly caused by suffocation. This was taken by many at the time to prove that the skeletons were, in fact, the princes, and they had been killed by suffocation.

Suggested activities

- Complete a family tree for the Yorkist side, including the Duke of York; his sons George, Richard and Edward; Edward's two sons; and Elizabeth Woodville.
- Complete an annotated timeline of the Wars of the Roses, so that pupils can understand how the throne swung from Lancaster to York, and back to Lancaster, then back to York.
- Investigate whether it should be believed that Richard III did murder the Princes in the Tower, weighing the evidence for both sides of the debate.

Sources

- Extracts from The Usurpation of Richard III, written in December 1483 by Dominic Mancini. He was an Italian spy who worked for the Archbishop of Vienne, and was briefly visiting England in 1483.

Thinking deeper questions

1. Why might it be possible that Richard III killed the Princes in the Tower?
2. How would you describe the behaviour of the House of York during the Wars of the Roses?

Unit 6: Late medieval England

Chapter 5: The Battle of Bosworth Field

Recap

- The outbreak of the Wars of the Roses, and the coronation of the Yorkist Edward IV in 1461.
- The coronation of Richard III in 1483, and the suspicious circumstances by which he came to the throne.
- Vocabulary to recap: Lancastrian; Wars of the Roses; Yorkist.

Key vocabulary

Dynasty A succession of powerful people from the same family

Pikemen Soldiers who carried 12-foot-long, steel headed pikes, used to stop cavalry charges

Key dates

1485 Henry Tudor wins the Battle of Bosworth and is crowned King Henry VII

Key people

Elizabeth of York The elder sister of the murdered princes in the tower, who married Henry Tudor

Margaret Beaufort The mother of Henry VII, who played a central role in his bid for the throne

Check your understanding

1. What was Henry Tudor's claim to the throne?

Answer: Henry Tudor's claim to the throne was not strong. On his father's side, his Welsh grandfather had been servant to Henry V, and married Henry V's widow in 1432. In addition, his mother was the great-great-granddaughter of Edward III.

2. Who helped Henry Tudor prepare his bid for the English throne?

Answer: Henry's mother helped him prepare his bid for the English throne. Margaret Beaufort was a skilful political operator, moving her support between the Houses of Lancaster and York when it suited her best.

3. What happened to Richard III during his cavalry charge against the Lancastrians?

Answer: During his cavalry charge against the Lancastrians, Richard III was knocked off his horse by a French pikeman. According to Shakespeare's retelling of the battle, Richard cried out at this moment: 'A horse! A horse! My kingdom for a horse!'

4. What was sensible about Henry VII's decision to marry Elizabeth of York?

Answer: Henry VII's decision to marry Elizabeth of York was sensible because she was a member of the House of York, and Henry VII was a member of the House of Lancaster. This marriage united the two houses, and could finally end their 30-year feud.

5. Who do sympathisers of Richard III believe is responsible for his bad reputation in English history?

Answer: Sympathisers of Richard III believe that Shakespeare is responsible for his bad reputation in English history, due to his play that was written around one hundred years after Richard III's death.

Suggested activities

- Annotate a map of the Battle of Bosworth Field, explaining all of the key aspects of the battle.
- Complete a case study of why the skeleton found in Leicester in 2012 could be identified as Richard III.

Sources

- Account of the Battle of Bosworth from Polydore Vergil, written 1503-12.
- Account of the Battle of Bosworth from John Rous, a Warwickshire priest, written around 1490.
